Third Court of Civil Appeals in an effort to keep the commission-ers from acting.

The plaintiffs asked the civil appeals court to issue an order preventing the commission from letting the contracts until the case could be taken to the supreme court on an application for writ of error and determined there.

The supreme court at noon re-fused to restrain the commission from acting pending an appeal, noting that it did not have jurisdiction and that the case would have to come to it in the regular way, on application writ of error.

The civil appeals court had dissolved a district court order restraining the commission from awarding the contracts.

—(AP)—A second firm, politic refusal to extend the war debt moratorium was in the hands of the British today while the American government waited to see how much of the nearly $125,-000,000 due December 15 would be paid by foreign debtors.

A few hours after renewed oposition to reducing these obligations had been heard in congress. Secretary Stimson last night gave Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, the United States reply to that country's newest request for suspension of payments this month.

While the contents were not made public, it was assumed in official quarters that the note said again that congress alone could change the debt situation, that the president would ask creation of an agency to study it, and advised that payment be made.

At least six countries have asked for a new moratorium, the Belgian government making a second appeal yesterday. President Hoover, is expected soon to transmit a special message on the debt guestion to congress. Meanwhile.

ESTIMATE COTTON CROP MUCH HIGHER THAN MONTH AGO

12,727,000 BALES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. cotton crop was estimated today by the department of agriculture at 12,727,000 bales, an increase of 780,000 bales over the November 1 forecast.

Explaining the increase, the department said it was due partly to better yields per acre in all the major producing states and also to the fact that early reports of acreage planted to cotton were unduly low.

The estimate was of December 1. The total crop last year was 17,096,000 bales and in 1930 it was 13,932,000.

The Bible has sharp words to say about the idler.

A Mill-worker's Memories.

A cross the year these agents to the same and conferring.

With that incisiveness of speech which capital the same and conferring.

Across the years there comes to ne a vivid memory from my early oyhood, when I worked in a tex-ile mill. Twelve hours a day was then the normal working period; and often three or four hours of night-work were added. My work required constant activity; and I an still recall the sweet luxuriance of being able to lie down for half an hour at lunch time on an odorous sack of wool, in sheer re-laxation. Just to rest—to do nothing—to give the tired muscles a bit of repose—that was bliss, beyond words.

So I am thinking first of the multitudes who do exhausting physical work—not forgetting the ceaseless busyness of the mothers of the world—to whom leisure of the world—to whom leisure means first of all ret. From carliest days I recall my tired mother's frantic exclamation. "I want you to put on my tomb-stone 'At Rest." Heaven is the hope and haven of weary spirits overstrained in earth's duties. There are hosts of men and women to whom the active physical burden of heavy work is a load crushing both body and soul. The new order of longer leasure will be a boon to them.

soul. The new order of longer leasure will be a boon to them. Some persons came to the end of each day literally too tired to finish for read or to pray. Their lives are "cabined, cribbed and confined" to the limits of working, eating, sleeping. There is not more in them for aesthetic or solitical development. Because the was a laboring man, used to the Orient's long hours of unremitting foil, Jesus could say with especial feeling, "Come unto Me. all yethat labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." He knew what He was talking about.

A Historic Instance.

In the light of this background, it is of interest to observe the practice of Jesus, during His public ministry. He insisted upon times apart from the crowd, for Himself and for His disciples. He simply had to have His mountain retreats. His philosophy of good work is expressed in His call to the apostles, after a busy campaign, "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while; for there are manny co. ing and going, and they had no leis-and and come of the pressure of the pres into a desert place, and rest a while; for there are many con ing and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat."

There we have warrant for vacations. The bow-string may not be kept always taut, else it lose its power. Science and industry have learned that men do as much work in eight hours it whad done in ten, and better. Relaxation is as great a part of efficiency as effort. There are eminent religious leaders in the land today

As The Jews of Old.

Many persons will be surprised to find in the Bible such a passage as forms part of our Lesson text. When the Jews returned from exile, and heard the reading of the Law, they were inclined to be moody and morbid-and melancholy. The Leisurely Heart.

Anne Waring's hymn, "Father, I know that all my life is portioned out for me," has a haunting line, wherein she prays for "A heart at leisure from itself, To soothe and sympathize."

No leisure is adequate which does not release one from the thrallom of self-engrossment, or provide objective of interest outside of one's self. BY WILLIAM T ELLIS

Something of grim humor attaches to this topic, assigned by the International Lesson Committee long before millions of men and women were living in enforced and unwelcome leisure. In the light of present condition, leisure is hardly the most desirable social objective.

Be devoted in part to literature. When people have time, then they may be expected to read real books, the tested, standard works. Italy Decides To Pay Interest

ROME, Dec. 6.—(P)—Premier Mussolini disregarded the postponement actions of other debtor nations today, when he decided Italy would pay the $1,245,000 due the United States December 15.

The supreme council of Fascism recommended the action—and it is tantamount to definite decision—after the premier himself had addressed the body.

was over, as far as congress we concerned, without incident and almost before it began.

The column of 3,000 marchers moved on through the business section of the city after delegations presented to Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner petitions listing their unemployment relief and insurance demands. The police guard around both house and senate was relaxed.

Scant attention was paid in either branch to the presidential message. Conversation was general and in the house it rose to a point that it drowned out the reading clerk's voice. A few members read printed copies that were distributed. There was no applause until the end when some republicans clapped.

Immediately after the reading Senator Huey Long of Louisiana, made the first senate speech of the session, observing that while Governor Roosevelt was elected on the issue of "decentralization of wealth" there seemed to be in Mr. Hoover's message "quite a little effort to roll along the sales tax in a quiet, easy way."

Mills directly asked the house to reverse itself. Only six months ago, that body bolted its leaderago, that body bolted its leader-ship to vote down a one and three quarters per cent sales tax, and the issue was not even brought to a vote in the senate. Drastic reduction in govern-mental expenditures was insisted

He said goyernment spending could be reduced by $479,000,000 in the 1934 fiscal year if recommendations made by the Fresident in his budget message were followed. Mr. Mills asked congress to re-

Mr. Mills asked congress to retain the one cent a gallon tax on gasoline, which was to be effective only until next June, saying if it was continued for an other year it would provide an additional $137,000,000 of revenue, reducing the estimated deficit by that amount. It is not feasible, he said, to provide for resumption of the normal reduction of the public debt in 1934 but urged that is the normal reduction of the public debt in 1934 but urged that is the normal reduction of the public debt in 1934 but urged that there is not feasible, he said, to provide for resumption.

"However difficult and painful it may be," Mills told congress, government expenditures must be drastically cut when, owing to extraordinary circumstances, the government finds that within a comparative short period its revenues have been cut in half with little prospect of substantial improvement in the near future.

"In a period of deep depression,
with the income of the people greatly reduced, with their buying power drastically curtailed, and with millions deprived of their canning capacity it is only unwise earning capacity, it is only unwise but impossible to bridge the gap in the budget entirely by increased taxation. There is no other course for the government to follow but the one to which individuals and business enterprises are driven under similar circumstances, that is, to endeavor to live within its income."
